

2020 Annual Conference of the European Network on Gender and Violence (ENGV)

29 June -1 July 2020

Department of Social Work, University College Copenhagen

Denmark

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

ENGV is an interdisciplinary, international network supporting exchange and collaboration among researchers, scholars and professionals. The network's annual conferences provide a forum for friendly debate of current research.

We are inviting contributions on new empirical findings or new theory or methodology (please do not submit proposals about work in the planning stage). All methodologies are welcome as are in-depth reflections on research / policy intersections. The conference will offer three formats for presenting work:

- (1) Inputs. We emphasize discussion in the plenary. Inputs are meant to prompt discussion. They should be presented within 10 minutes, which will be followed by 20 minutes discussion. Please situate your topic in the context of relevant research, in particular in Europe. You may circulate a longer version of your input prior to the conference.
- (2) Posters. Prepare in sizes A2 or A1. Posters will be presented at a dedicated poster reception with a prize for the best poster. Posters will be displayed throughout the conference.
- (3) Materials for display. You can bring books, chapters, reports etc for display and/or distribution. We can also circulate such information by email before the conference.

Ksenia Meshkova organizes the Early Career Researchers' Day, which will fall on Monday 29 June 2020. The day is for early career researchers to discuss papers, research proposals or Master's / PhD theses at any stage of completion. This is also a good opportunity to network and discuss challenges of doing gender violence research. Experienced researchers who want to lend their support are also welcome. Early career researchers who seek feedback on their papers need to send them to all participants in Early Career Researchers' Day before the conference.

For all contributions (main conference and early career researchers' day), please send submission form with 200-word abstract to ENGV Copenhagen 2020 no later than 15 February 2020.

We look forward to seeing you in Copenhagen in 2020!
